7 GOOD REASONS TO SHOOT IN KOREA

1. KOFIC Location Incentive for Foreign Audio-visual Works

The Korea Film Council offers up to 25% cash rebate on foreign feature films, television series and documentaries production costs incurred for goods and services in Korea.

2. Korea is the leading film industry in Asia

Being the 7th largest film market in the world (Source: MPAA 2015), Korea has a reputation of being a significant influence in the Asian entertainment industry. The Korean Wave sweeping all over Asia is a proof of that.

3. Great People

Korea has a wealth of award-winning directors and cast members along with professional crews and technicians. The caliber and quality of the Korean film industry's people are seen by the international film community as world class.

4. Strong Infrastructure

Korea has dedicated sound stages and outdoor film sets in a wide range of sizes as well as full post-production laboratories, sound and digital imagery facilities. Thanks to a highly advanced IT infrastructure and experienced technicians, our digital post production and VFX houses are also world class.

5. Network of Regional Film Commissions

Since 1999, 10 film commissions have been established in almost every region of Korea providing active support in location scouting and shooting.

6. Nature and Cultural Heritage

Four distinct seasons, easy access to any shooting location, an over 5,000 year old cultural heritage - Korea has everything a film shoot could need.

7. Cost-effective Environment

Korea offers competitive rates in all areas of production whilst also assuring you a high quality product. The comparative price level of its services is ranked near the bottom among other OECD countries.

KOREAN FILMING INCENTIVES

KOFIC Location Incentive for Foreign Audio-visual Works

The Korean Film Council (KOFIC) has provided a location incentive since 2011, which supports part of the expenses of foreign feature film and television drama series shot in Korea. Productions that choose to shoot in Korea can enjoy significant cost savings making their international production budgets more competitive.

Up to 25% Cash Grant on Costs

KOFIC offers up to 25% cash grant on foreign audio-visual works production expenditure incurred for goods and services in Korea. The grant amount shall be determined taking into account the remaining grant program budget on the date of application.

Eligible Works

Feature films, television series and documentaries produced by a foreign production company, in which the allocation of foreign capital in the production cost exceeds 80%

- Feature film : a consecutive set of images or video on film, disks, or digital medium, with minimum runtime of 70 minutes produced for public viewing at a cinema, screening facilities or similar places and/ or through on-line streaming.
- Television series : a series of dramas or shows produced for television broadcast or on-line streaming, with a pre-planned set number of episodes sharing a common theme or structure.

- Documentary : a documentary produced for viewing at a cinema, screening facilities or similar places, television, or on-line.
 - * Animation, commercials, sports events, and educational programs are not eligible.
- Eligible works must satisfy the following requirements:
- Must receive approval from the Review Committee who will evaluate, among other things, the following three elements: (1) the degree to which the work promotes tourism ("tourism expansion"); (2) the degree to which the work contributes to the Korean film industry ("quantitative contribution"); and (3) the extent to which the foreign producer participates in the production of the work ("foreign engagement")
 - Must spend no less than 100 million KRW (approx. 100,000 USD) in Korea for production expenditure as recognized by the Korean Film Council ('Qualifying Production Expenditure' or QPE). For a television series, the production costs of all the episodes can be aggregated.
 - Must shoot more than 3 days in Korea

Eligible Applicants

A corporation organized and registered as a business in Korea meeting the following requirements:

- A film producer or a video producer recognized under the Film and Video Works Promotion Act or an independent broadcasting audio-visual work producer recognized under the Basic Law on Cultural Industry Promotion.
- Must be a company who has signed with a foreign production company on a production service agreement, and thereby provides services necessary for in-Korea production of a foreign audio-visual project and operates and manages the relevant financial account for the production. This company must not be a Korean subsidiary of or a Korean company invested by a foreign production company. Provided that, the aforesaid foreign production company shall not be a Korean company's overseas branch or owned more than 50% by a Korean company, its foreign subsidiary or a Korean person.

Application Process

Overall process : (1) Provisional application; (2) Entering into an agreement; (3) Final application; and (4) Grants awarded

- Provisional application : The applicant submits the provisional application with supporting documents. The Review Committee evaluates the application and decides on the eligibility and the provisional grant amount, if any. Finally, KOFIC, after deliberating upon the Review Committee's evaluation results, makes the final decision and notifies the applicant.
- Entering into an agreement : KOFIC and the recipient enter into a grant agreement.
- Final application : The recipient submits the final application and the supporting documents such as the audited statement of expenditure, the certificate of subsidy settlement report(only applicable if the total subsidy is 300million KRW or more), and the Review Committee makes the final decision on the eligibility and the final grant amount.
- Grants awarded : KOFIC deliberates on the final evaluation results of the Review Committee and makes the payment to the applicant.

Miscellaneous

The total budget, application process and other contents of this grant program may be subject to change on an annual basis. Further detailed guidelines can be found at KOFIC's website www.koreanfilm.or.kr.

Korean Film Council

The Korean Film Council (KOFIC) is a special organization entrusted by the Republic of Korea’s Ministry of Culture, Sports and Tourism aiming to support the development and promotion of Korean films. KOFIC was established in 1973 and is composed of nine commissioners (a full-time chairman and 8 non full-time committee members) appointed by the Ministry of Culture, Sports and Tourism in order to discuss and decide on major issues pertaining to the development of Korean films. KOFIC consists of separate departments specializing in various key aspects of Korean cinema;

- the Domestic Promotion team which supports Korean films and the film industry;
- the International Promotion team which is responsible for international public relations, the promotion of Korean films abroad and internationsl co-productions;
- the Film Research & Development team which provides vital information in the form of statistics, analyses and publications. In addition,
- the Korean Academy of Film Arts which trains and is responsible for the continuing education of film professionals;
- the KOFIC Namyangju Studios which provide film services and state-of-the-art film production facilities;
- the Technical Support Department which undergoes research on the future of cinema technology such as digital cinema and 3D films;
- the General Management Department which manages the film development fund for Korean films.

Geography

Located along the North Pacific coast between neighbors China and Japan, Korea is a mountainous peninsula with mountains covering up 70% of the land mass. Bordered by the 38th parallel to the north, South Korea consists of a peninsular and one main island Jeju, a special self-governing province well known for its unique volcanic scenery. The country's total territory covers 100,140km² and comprises a population of 51.5 million people. The economy is the 11th largest in the world by GDP. The currency is the Won, and the capital city is Seoul.

International Map

Seasons and Climate

Korea has a continental climate with four distinct seasons. While the spring and fall boast beautiful scenes of nature and a mild climate, winter is generally cold and dry and summer is hot and sultry with humidity around 80%. Under the influence of the East Asia monsoon, 50~60% of annual precipitation falls in summer with typhoons striking 2~3 times around the end of July.

Rail

High speed rail (KTX) and regional railroads connect the entire country. At present, the KTX Seoul-Busan (from north end to south end) takes only 2 hours and 30 minutes, whereas normal trains take 5 hours and 30 minutes maximum.

You may view the fare and service details (including stations served) at the Korail Website www.korail.com.

Roads

There are a number of expressways running north-south, east-west, and national and regional roads are also accessible from any cities or towns. Traffic drives on the right hand side of the road in South Korea. Some expressways with regular heavy traffic have bus only lanes.

Express Bus

For those who are planning a longer trip on a smaller budget, express busses are a good option as they are cheaper than high speed trains. Connecting the entire country, express busses are generally divided into two classes: regular and deluxe.

For terminal information and time schedules, visit www.kobus.co.kr.

Inter-city transportation

Subway

Subway services are available in the Metropolitan Seoul region, Busan, Daegu, Gwangju and Daejeon. You may purchase one-time ticket (starting from 1100 won) or discount cards for regular use.

For Seoul subway route map, visit www.seoulmetro.co.kr

City Local Busses

Local City Busses are available in all cities and towns throughout the country. Depending on the types of the busses (usually in different colors according to the distance they cover), fares vary from 600 up to 2,200 won.

Other Forms of Transport

Car rentals and taxi services are available in all cities. International drivers in Korea can drive for up to one year from entry with an international driver's license, and car insurance is compulsory. Taxies run on a meter.

Accommodation

There are various types of accommodation that can fit your budget, from top-class hotels to affordable guesthouses and motels (inns). For those who plan to stay for a long period, short-term rental in condominiums, residence hotels and lodging houses are available.

For more information about accommodation, visit www.visitkorea.or.kr

Food

Rice remains the staple of Korean diet, and a typical meal consists of steamed rice, soup or stew, various side dishes (mostly seasoned vegetables) and meat. Kimchi (vegetables fermented with salt and spices) is definitely the most common side dish.

Among Korean dishes, bibimbap (steamed rice mixed with vegetables), bulgogi (marinated beef) and galbi (beef or pork ribs) are frequently considered the favorites of foreigners. Western and other ethnic foods as well as fusion dishes are available in a growing number of restaurants. There also are many internationally known family restaurant chains such as TGIF, Outback Steakhouse and fast food eateries like McDonald's and Burger King.

Telecommunication

Mobile phone service

Foreigners can either rent mobile handset for a short term or subscribe to the mobile service with their own cell phone. The three main service providers are KT, SK Telecom and LG.

Check each service provider for further information.

International calls

To call overseas, dial the Overseas Switchboard Number + Country Code + Area Code + Telephone Number.

International calling cards can be used in Korea, while payphones using coins or local calling cards are rapidly diminishing due to high cell phone penetration.

Internet

Korea is one of the most connected countries in the world with high speed broadband and wireless internet services available anywhere in the country. Internet cafes, widely available in any city, town or village, can become very handy as they provide internet facilities at a low cost starting from around 1,000 won (approx. 1 USD) per hour.

Postal and delivery service

Post offices are open between 9:00 and 18:00, Monday to Friday. Door to door delivery service, provided by post offices and several other private companies, is cheap and fast, taking 2~3 days (3~4 days over a holiday period) for domestic general deliveries. The minimum fee for small parcel delivery starts at 5,000 won. Door to door motorcycle delivery, called Quick Service in Korea, is also available for immediate pick-up and deliveries.

For detailed postal service, visit www.koreapost.go.kr.

Banks

Banks are open between 9:00 and 16:30, Monday to Friday. Foreign currency exchange is available at almost all Korean banks. ATM machines are widely available throughout the country. Credit cards with international debit and credit plans can access Korean ATM machines.

Power

The electricity supply is set at 220 volts, 60Hz. Step-down transformers are available at electronic shops. Korea uses two-pin plugs, the same as France, Germany, Austria, Turkey, etc.

Video and DVD

Korea uses the NTSC system. The region code for Korean DVDs is 3, and multi zone DVD players are widely available.

KOREAN FILM INDUSTRY

Overview

Local Industry

Besides Korea's well known cell phone, semi-conductor and shipbuilding industries, Korean film has also become globally renowned.

The industry went through rapid growth in various areas over the last decade and achieved significant developments in its quantity and quality. Since 2004, two films have surpassed the 10 million theatrical admissions mark, which significantly enhanced its pace into the global market. With its film-friendly atmosphere and passionate audience, Korea's film entertainment market was ranked the world's 7th largest in 2015. (Source: MPAA 2015)

Fund raising and revenue structure

Investment structure

Korean film financing largely depends on equity financing. Equity financing does not guarantee a payment on the principal, but it is similar to an interest paying method with profits made according to the size of the investment. The main investor who owns the copyright is in charge of raising such funds. Equity financing for Korean films can be generally divided into three categories - the main investor, sub-investor and the production company which raises funds on its own. The main investor, an investment company which owns the distribution rights, uses the money raised by the production company and the money borrowed from the sub-investor for the production costs and then secures the copyright. It also manages the production, ensures the completion of the film, calculates the profit and costs, and licenses the rights. The subinvestor supplies a portion of the costs used for production to the main investor and is entitled to receive a fixed percentage of the profits made from licensing sales in accordance with its equity share.

Main (strategic) investors

The main investors of Korean films can be classified into three types.

The A type main investors have the most influence in the Korean film industry. They include only two companies in Korea; CJ E&M, which runs the biggest multiplex theater chain CGV and its affiliate Primus Cinema; and Lotte Entertainment Inc. which runs the other large multiplex theater chain, Lotte Cinema. In terms of B type Investors, the most influential investor is Showbox, Mediaplex Inc.; this company does not operate the multiplex theater chain Megabox anymore, but is still considered to be one of the major investors. There are some new companies such as N.E.W. and Synergy that have been recently established in the B type as well. C type main investors include United Pictures and KM Culture. Recently, giant telecom conglomerates have made concerted advances into the film industry in order to acquire the satellite broadcast and IPTV rights of films, and have quickly become known as major investors. SK Broadband, the most dominant IPTV company in Korea, has acquired I-Film, while KT, the largest wired service provider and second-largest mobile telecom company in Korea, has also been investing in film contents.

Investment funds

In Korea, Visual Content Funds managed by venture capital firms work as sub-investors serving a significant role as financial investors in Korean film productions. Generally, they cover up to 40% of the production costs.

Visual Contents Investment Funds contributed greatly to the development of the Korean film industry after 2001. The established amount for these funds was available for a limited term of between 5 and 7 years as standby investment funds. These funds served as a successful lever stabilizing investments into the film industry and they also became a significant source of funding. The current state of the Visual Content Investment Funds that are now active, as well as the size of the government's contribution, are described in the following table.

* KOBIS (who records 99% of national theaters through electronic ticket system)

Profit share

Main investors in Korea receive 50% of the ticket revenue from theaters, therefore receiving the majority of the profits of Korean films. After this a distribution fee of around 10% is deducted from the remaining revenue including the profit gained from ancillary markets. Then the costs used for production and marketing are recouped and 60% of the net profit is distributed to each investor (main, sub) and 40% of the net profit is distributed to the production company that produced the film. Recently, the net profit shares for production companies have gradually fallen due to the growing market domination by the main investors.

FILM INDUSTRY INFRASTRUCTURE

PEOPLE

Korean filmmakers have earned a global reputation for their hard work and innovation. From world renowned directors to skilled crews and experts in post production, Korea has one of the most competitive workforces in the global film industry. It has therefore become the most sought-after location in Asia when it comes to international productions because, after all, the most important asset of any country is its PEO PLE.

Award-winning writers, directors, and producers

Korean directors and producers have become highly recognized in the international film community. From director KIM Ki-duk's Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter to PAR K Chan-wook's Old Boy and LEE Chang-dong's Poetry, Korean films have swept up numerous awards at Cannes and other prestigious film festivals. 'Creativity is the key to their achievements', says many in the film industry.

Talented actors and actresses

For the last decade Korean actors and actresses have been at the center of Hanryu, or the Korean Wave, and have become loved by audiences from all over Asia. As the leading figures in the Asian entertainment industry, their acting talents have been highly recognized and have drawn tremendous attention from film professionals in the region

Recently their presence have become internationally apparent with JEON Do-yeon receiving the best actress award at Cannes for her performance in Secret Sunshine and other colleague actors such as LEE Byung-hun, Rain and JANG Dong-gun taking main roles in Hollywood productions G.I.Joe, Ninja Assassin and The Warrior's Way.

Innovative and flexible crews

The strong work ethic and passion of Korean film crews stands unrivalled. From scripting to location scouting, DO Ps, costume designers, stunt people and lighting technicians, Korea boasts professional and committed specialists with international experience in almost any area.

Skilled experts in post production

As Korea is well known for its excellence in the IT industry, so are the people in the film post production process. From film laboratories to digital and VFX production, our post production workers complete their work quickly, with quality assurance and cost-effectiveness regardless of the scale of the film all in conjunction with cutting-edge facilities.

FACILITIES

Korea has dedicated film sets and studios in a wide range of sizes as well as full post-production laboratories, sound and digital imagery facilities. Backed by government support programs and private investments, Korea offers many competitive advantages to ensure cost-effective production of your film.

Outdoor film sets

There are 28 main open sets currently being used for film or TV drama productions in Korea. Most of them are located out of the Seoul Metropolitan Area, with Jeolla Province which has the largest number of 11 sets, followed by Chungbuk and Gyeongbuk Province with 8 together. Most of the sets were heavily invested in by local governments and TV stations. Among them, 15 sets are larger than 33,000m².

They are mostly used for shooting period pieces that cover ancient times through to modern times yet some of them are equipped with special contemporary sets such as prisons and churches. For detailed information, contact each regional Film Commission introduced at the next chapter.

Studios (Sound Stages)

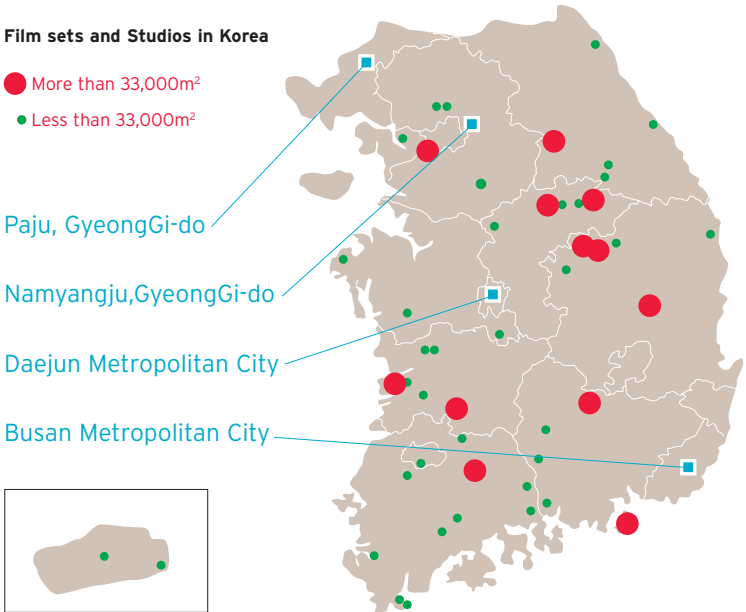

Among the many film studios in Korea, 4 major film studios (detailed on the right) are the most frequently used. Rental fees per day vary depending on the sizes and equipment available in each studio ranging from 300 USD to 1,000 USD. Diverse support services are also available including production offices, ancillary buildings, amenity facilities, storage, etc.

Post-production

Korea is fast becoming a favorable one-stop location for the entire post production process. From traditional film laboratories to sound and digital post production, Korea offers highly advanced facilities fully equipped with state-of-the-art technology. It is little wonder then that Korea has been much favored by many productions across Asia seeking quality assurance in post production services.

Visual Effects

Korea boasts world class visual effects services that have built an international reputation for many years now. Filmmakers can expect highly efficient services both with the security of largescale facilities and the flexibility of smaller independents. As seen in many co-productions across Asia and internationally acclaimed local productions, the nature of adaptability and the meticulousness of the Korean industry is highly sought after when it comes to the visual effects field.

Thanks also to advanced and secure high-speed internet infrastructure, CGI projects and other digital sources can be immediately streamed online saving extensive amounts of time and money.

NATIONAL FILM COMMISSION

Each local government in Korea runs a regional film commission, which have recently developed a mutual-assistance network through the Korea Film Commissions & Industry Network(KFCIN). As of 2016, 12 film commissions located in major cities are in operation. From assisting productions in obtaining film permits, traffic control and hiring human resources to providing other miscellaneous assistance, regional film commissions offer a variety of services required for film production. Some film commissions provide script development funds, office space for filmmakers, and incentive programs to attract audio-visual productions to Korea, while a number of them operate studios and post-production facilities.

Since the first film commission emerged to offer production support service in 1999, film commissions located all around Korea have expanded their operations on a national scale and broaden their range of support. With their emphasis on expanding the support system and networking, a joint committee of 6 film commissions under the name of Korea Film Commissions & Industry Network was founded in 2004. Its organization was renewed in 2011 with expanded members of 10 film commissions and the addition of the Korean Film Producers Association (KFPA), Korea Drama Production Association (CODA), Producers Guild of Korea (PGK) and Federation of Korean Movie Workers' Union (FKMWU) as a non-governmental collaborative that reacts flexibly to changes occurring in the industry and influences the government to directly implement policy suggestions.

With the goal of inspiring regional and national economic growth by attracting domestic and international film productions, providing production-related support and exposing local attractions through audio-visual products, and encouraging a well-balanced development of a national-scale film and audio-visual industry through rigorous regional exchange, the Korea Film Commissions & Industry Network has made multilateral efforts to create a brand name for the domestic audio-visual industry. In doing so, KFCIN assists audio-visual human resources to be efficiently recruited with the help of location and audio-visual industry-related information database, thus connects various elements and fields spanning the regional and national, industry and public organizations, and film and broadcasting, attracting productions to existing shooting locations and promoting exchange in human resources and technology in addition to simply encouraging tourism. From 2015, the network expanded its operations to marketing Korea as a filming location internationally and acting as the major inbound contact point representing all regional film commissions.

What KFCIN does

- Provide first-hand information on how to film in Korea, available incentives, locations, filming permits etc.
- Inbound gateway: connect to the local film industry, from location coordinators and line producers to production service companies
- Act as interface between the regional film commissions and the international film team in the initial location scouting stage
- Support location scouting and research for projects set in Korea
- Operate annual Korea Location FAMTours for international location managers, executives and other film professionals

The film commission members of The Korea Film Commissions & Industry Network are as follows:

Seoul Film Commission(SFC)
Incheon Film Commission(IFC)
Gyeonggi Film Commission(GGFC)
Gangwon Film Commission(GWFC)

Daejeon Film Commission(DFC)
Cheongpung Film Commission(CFC)
Chungnam Film Commission(CNFC)

REGIONAL FILM COMMISSIONS

Korea has a strong network of regional film commissions. As of 2016, 10 regional film commissions cover all major cities and provinces, providing film-friendly environment for film productions. These film commissions assist productions in obtaining film permits, serve as a liaison between production companies and shooting locations, arrange traffic control, human resources hire and provide other miscellaneous assistance. Some film commissions operate equipment rentals, studios and post production facilities as well. Here are brief introductions to the major film commissions.

Introduction

The 600-year old capital of the nation, where tradition and modernity co-exist together, is able to offer everything a film needs. The city is surrounded by mountains and rivers that provide a scenic backdrop to urban space, and contains skyscrapers as well as national treasures and traditional style buildings. As Seoul is the home of 95% of all film related companies and film facilities, over 40% of all local films are shot in the city every year. With the growing recognition and popularity of Korean films in international markets, Seoul has become an increasingly popular destination for international productions and co-productions in recent years.

Location highlights

- Gwanghwamun, the main gate of Gyeongbokgung Palace, Korea's most symbolic historic building, overlooking Korea's largest and most important square, the Gwanghwamun Square
- Located right in the middle of the city Seoul N Tower on Mount Namsan overlooks the homes and workplaces of over 10 million Seoulites

- The almost one kilometer wide Han River divides the city into Northern and Southern parts which are connected by 27 bridges each illuminated in their own distinctive style at night

Incentive programs open to international productions

Production Cost Support Program

A up to 25% cash rebate on production costs for film & TV productions shot in Seoul. The Cap at 100,000,000 KRW (approx.90,000 USD) can be lifted for projects with extraordinary high marketing value.

Location Scouting Support Program

Provides the cost of Seoul location scouting for directors, assistant directors, producers, cinematographers, production designers or location managers of international projects planning to shoot in Seoul (airline tickets, accommodation, domestic location coordination and a rental car).

Seoul Screenplay Development Support Program

Offers round trip flight tickets for two, the use of a scenario work space located in Seoul for a maximum of 30 days to foreign directors, producers, and screenwriters during their stay in Seoul as they write and do research for their scenarios.

Infrastructure & filming support

CFC_ CHEONGPUNG FILM COMMISSION

Introduction

Chungcheongbuk-do is often called 'The city of fresh wind and a bright moon'. Together with its beautiful mountains and valleys, its reputation comes from the magnificent townscape of Jecheon city, where the CFC is based, and the surrounding CheongPung Lake (67.5km²) which is well known for its breathtaking scenery. It is also adjacent to Woraksan National Park which has long been known as a divine peak thanks to its steep physical features and ferociously tall cliffs.

Location highlights

- Urim-Ji Lake, one of the oldest irrigation facilities in Korea surrounded by several hundred years old pine trees, weeping willows, a 30-meter high natural waterfall and water fountain.
- CheongPung Lake, a famous freshwater fishery with vast and flat terrain.
- Bibong Mountain, a hawk shaped mountain encompassed by CheongPung Lake, giving an illusionary look of an island over the sea
- Cheongpung Cultural Village: Following the meandering path of Namhan River, you will meet the Cheongpung Cultural Village where the traces of hardship our ancestors were forced to endure poetically comes alive. Here, the encounter with wooden and stone architecture and moss-covered stones is deeply moving in the way it matches history with nature. This place functions as a small folk village where a vast collection of 1,900 pieces of daily-used relics are on display

Introduction

Jeju is famously known as the "Island of Peace" and "Island of Mystery". It boasts natural beauty with a long history and unique culture, along with beautiful seasonal landscapes. It is also favored by many film directors from home and abroad, because of its excellent natural open set. Its geographical location, as a key transfer point of Northeast Asia, gives Jeju a role acting as a bridge between Southeastern Asian countries as well as China and Japan. In addition, Mt.Halla, Geomun Oreum and Seongsan Sunrise Peak in Jeju Island have been inscribed as World Natural heritages by UNESCO.

Location highlights

- Magnificent scenery over the entire island which originated from volcanic eruption
- Over 360 mountains, hills and beautiful beaches
- Grassland, meadows, and well organized roads

Incentive programs open to international productions

- In-kind support of accommodation up to 15 days for film development and script writing

- Support program for productions (partial accommodation support)

LAWS & REGULATIONS

KOREA'S CORPORATE LAW

There are total 4 ways that foreign film producers may shoot films in Korea by means of a liaison office or branch office in Korea, jointly producing with a production company in Korea, or just receiving production services.

(1) Establishment of Liaison Office

The establishment of a liaison office means that a foreign company who wants to shoot a film in Korea is registered in Korea as a foreign company and serves as its legal representative. Although the liaison office is located in Korea, on practical and legal terms it belongs to the overseas parent company and all responsibilities and liabilities of the liaison office are attributed to the overseas parent company. Thus, the Liaison Office is not allowed to undertake any commercial activity such as business contract transaction independently. Only the parent company which established the liaison office can conduct accounting transaction and business contracts.

Establishing a liaison office does not particularly require capital and the registration process is simple. Also, the liaison office is suitable for limited researching and collecting market information, and acting as a communication channel. The legal representative of liaison office may hire an employee for its operations or directly operate the liaison office. If the legal representative is not of Korean nationality, he or she should obtain a visa prior to entry into Korea.

<Procedure for the establishment >

1. Report on the establishment of the liaison office to a designated Foreign Exchange Bank
2. Obtain business identification number

- from the competent tax office
3. Open bank account at the designated Foreign Exchange Bank (remittances shall be made through this bank account between the parent company and the liaison office)
 4. Normal processing time required for the establishment: 3~4 days

(2) Establishment of Corporation in Korea

A foreigner or foreign corporation may establish a corporation in Korea. A corporation, established independently and newly in accordance with Korean laws, is an affiliated company of the overseas parent company which holds ownership as a majority stockholder and carrying legal binding force on its business activities. A corporation is a completely separate entity from the parent company in the legal and accounting aspects.

Therefore, the corporation should observe the Korean laws and regulations including Labor laws, Corporation laws, Accounting laws, Tax laws and other relevant laws and regulations governing its business activities in Korea.

Beside corporation, one may set up a limited liability company in Korea which can limit the liabilities of the owner, so it is obliged that appropriate consultation shall be asked prior to the establishment. In addition, firms which want to undergo film business activities in Korea must register as a film business, referring to the guideline set out by the Korean Film Council.

<Procedure for the establishment>

1. Report the corporation as a foreign-invested company to a designated Foreign Exchange Bank
2. Register the establishment of the corporation with the competent tax office
3. Register the establishment of the corporation with the District Court

(3) Co-production with Korean Production Company

There are various forms of co-productions with production companies in Korea and different approaches are possible depending on the terms of the contract. The Korean production partner can take on all the responsibilities for investments in Korea, due formalities, contracts as well as effective and efficient management of the production. In addition, if specific conditions are met, various financial benefits are given through the support programs offered by the Korean Film Council and regional film commissions.

At present, Korea has concluded a co-production treaty with France, New Zealand. For more detailed information, please refer to the web site of the Korean Film Council.

[Note] Establishment of Special Purpose Company (SPC)

One may set up a 'special cultural industry company' as a special purpose company for the purpose of investment in films, transparency and efficiency of the money being used, film production management as well as fair and accurate distribution of profits.

As of October 2010, thirty-eight special purpose companies have been registered with the Ministry of Culture, Sports, and Tourism and are being operated. In general, the period of establishment of the special purpose company starts from the time when the development of the movie has been completed and the main investment has been decided. The commercial law classifies SPC as either limited liability company of corporation and a capital base of 100 million KRW is required under the Promotion of Cultural Industries Law.

The Certificate of Registration will be issued by Ministry of Culture, Sports, and Tourism within 21 days from the date of application to the ministry with the completed documents. Generally, more than 30 days are needed for the registration.

(4) Cases Involving Receipt of Production Services Only

In cases where the foreign producer only receives production services, he or she may contact the film producer or production service company or freelance producer in Korea. The list of Korean film producers including production service companies, and freelance producers are available at the

Korean Film Council.

Once the partners have been arranged through these institutions, the foreign producer may receive all the services related to production support programs including film crew, actors, extras, location, equipment and technical companies and other matters associated with the production.

The fee for the production services is estimated at 15% of the total production budget to be spent in Korea as a general rule and it is subject to change as the case may be.

For legal advice, please refer to the Korean Bar Association homepage www.koreanbar.or.kr

TAX

(1) Corporate Tax

In order to engage in business activities for profit in Korea, one must register its business at the national tax office and once such registration has been made the business must follow the tax laws of Korea (except in cases where it is explicitly stated otherwise in tax agreements entered into between nations). Basically, any local corporation established in Korea must register its business.

For businesses that have registered, the corporate tax must be reported annually and 10% tax rate is applied up to 200 million KRW and 22% for the amount excess over 200 million KRW.

However, for foreign companies that do not register its business in Korea and temporarily work during the production period, no tax shall be imposed except for Indirect Tax because such companies do not follow the Korean tax law. For example, simple liaison offices and receiving only production services that do not resister its business fall under this category.

(2) Value Added Tax: VAT

Korean VAT is one of typical indirect taxes and when business provides goods and services, the receiver imposes a rate of 10% of the price of such goods and services and file VAT return. In Korea, if the business has registered its business, then according to procedures and regulations the business may get a rebate or deduction on the VAT it paid.

Therefore, in cases where those residing in Korea have not registered its business, simple liaison office or when only receiving production services, Korean tax law shall not be applicable but it must still bear VAT when it receives goods and services within Korea.

1) VAT Rebate for Foreign Business

If a business is registered in Korea then it may receive rebate on most of the VAT it has accumulated, and even if it is a foreign business that has not yet registered in Korea it may receive rebate on the VAT it has indirectly incurred while producing the movie in Korea. These may include VAT that is imposed on food, board, ads, leases, office equipment and supply purchases and rentals which have been made in Korea.

2) Procedure on Receiving Rebate

For a business registered in Korea, VAT rebate is handled by the management department of the company. For foreign businesses not registered in Korea, it must be designated to tax officials, accountants, and other professional agencies dealing in tax rebate and they must apply for a rebate on behalf of the company. So for these business transactions, to make sure everything is filed correctly, it is in the best interest to assign a proxy company or an agent to deal with these matters.

(3) Personal Taxation such as Individual Tax

If the source of the income is from Korea then tax will be imposed on such income in Korea. In cases where foreigners have an income in Korea, to avoid the issue of double taxation by being taxed in Korea and in their foreign country and to avoid the issue of an income withholding tax in Korea, they must first refer to the tax treaty made between Korea and their respective country because Korea has a treat with many nations.

Generally most business income that does not have a domestic place of business and wages for short term labor are not considered as incomes where income withholding tax applies. Such income sourced from Korea can be subjected to income withholding tax depending on the type of income. To make an accurate assessment of tax liability, you must know the applicable law, the employment status, job description, work period, stay period, and other details, therefore it would be in the best interest to consult with a tax official or an accountant who are well-known on these international tax matters.

ISSUANCE OF VISA FOR ENTERING KOREA

Lately, Korea is entering into visa exemption agreements with many countries, and although these countries do not need a visa for short term traveling, they must receive a visa that fits the purpose of their stay if their stay exceeds the permitted period. The sojourn period, purpose and type of entrance are written on the visa and a stamp or sticker is placed on the visa when it is issued. Normally, for foreigners who entry Korea for film shoots they usually receive an art/entertainment-related E-6 visa. Specific information on how to apply and required documents can be acquired by making inquires at the embassy and consulate of the corresponding country in Korea.

CUSTOMS

(1) The ATA carnet - Agreement on Equipment Transportation

The ATA carnet is a certificate that replaces the complicated customs documents and security deposits required for temporarily importing/ exporting goods or transporting bonds among the more than 30 ATA Convention member states, including Korea. So, when using the ATA carnet, there is no need to fill out additional custom papers or pay customs tariff, VAT, and security deposits to the importing country's Customs during custom inspections. Thus, if you use the ATA carnet, going through customs in any ATA Convention member country can be a fast and smooth process. There are two ways to collect goods after customs; one way is to collect in person, the other way is to have it collected by a proxy through a local agency in cases where you are bringing goods through freight. You can choose the method that you want and the one that is appropriate for you.

Carnets are dealt in each country's Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

(2) Special Properties & Animals

1) When Importing Special Properties

There are many times when firearms and swords are needed for producing films. However, in Korea, firearms may not be admitted into the country without permission, and the production and procession of firearms are prohibited. The Regulations Units under the relevant local police officers have the jurisdiction over firearm matters in Korea.

Although the general rule is for the local police office to keep the prop firearm in their custody when it is not being used during the filming, because it is uncertain when it will be used, it is possible to store the prop firearm in safe prop storage after receiving the local police office's permission. Details regarding this matter can be found through the partner receiving the production service, and when importing firearms, you can receive tax exemption only through ATA carnets.

2) When Importing Animals

In regards to the importing, exporting, and re-importing of all animals; pet animals must have the permission of the Minister of the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry, and wild animals must have the permission of the Minister of the Ministry of Environment. Along with this, all animals must receive veterinary examinations at the border when going through customs. During the examination, if it is considered by the veterinarian to be necessary, animals can be quarantined for a long period of time, according to the animal's condition. Also, there are instances where animals die during shipping when only animals are directly imported, so close management such as people of the related organization actually following the animals is needed. Therefore, because there is much difficulty in temporarily importing animals and then sending them out again from your own country, it is advantageous to rent as a package through zoos, related organizations or local related organizations.

(3) Transportation & Clearance of Films

The foreign producer must decide whether film will be bought from his or her country and brought into Korea or if it is going to be bought in Korea. Which method is more advantageous depends on the nature of the film production such as whether it is a joint production or not, or depending on each country's local situation, the amount of shooting locations and film price. These conditions should be looked into carefully before the purchase of the film.

Foreign production companies do not incur any customs duty and VAT except for customs fees because, regardless of whether the film is purchased in or outside of Korea, or whether the film is developed or not after the shoot, the film is sent back to the foreign country after going through customs as a re-export based import or interim manufacturing export.

COPYRIGHT

In Korea, on completion of production of any copyright material, such material’s copyright becomes realized and protected even without going through any separate procedures or formalities for such right. Therefore, the original author retains an inclusive right, and by relinquishing such copyright to others or by allowing other people to use the copyrighted material the owner may receive economical compensation (royalty) in exchange. If someone uses another person’s copyrighted material without permission, the owner of the copyright may make a civil claim for damages and compensation against such person and may even request for criminal punishment against the infringer.

(1) Copyright Protection Period

The domestic protection period for a copyright is 50 years after death of the author in case of individual copyright materials, and is 50 years after declaration for group ownership copyright materials. After such protection period expires, the copyright material can be used by anyone freely.

(2) The Legitimate Use of Copyright Material

Because it is also important to uphold the purpose of the Copyright Act in allowing copyrighted materials to be smoothly used, such uses for trials, education, news reports, library use, replication for personal use only, street usage, copying of copyrighted arts on public open space like park graffiti, are all explicitly stated under the Act and so its use must be made within the scope of the Act. For details on the type of use and its criteria you must refer to the Copyright Act.

(3) Copyright Personal Rights

The Korean Copyright Act, aside to its original copyright, acknowledges a separate creator’s personal right which is referred to as the “moral right” under foreign law. Such right includes name rights, declaration rights, and consistency preservation rights, and unlike the original copyright, personal rights are not transferable and persist for the creator regardless of the copyright owner’s rights

(4) Protection of Foreigner’s Copyright Material

Even if it is a foreign copyright material that has not been introduced domestically, such material is protected by the Korean Copyright Act in accordance with the 1986 Berlin Treaty.

[Note] Procedures for foreigners when registering a copyright material in Korea

It is possible for a foreigner to register for a copyright in Korea. Foreigners that are residents of Korea, foreign companies that have its main place of business in Korea, foreigners that have declared the copyright material first in Korea, and foreigners who have declared the copyright in Korea within 30 days from the date it was declared in a foreign nation can register as the same as a domestic citizen. However, protections for all other foreigners that are not alluded above depend on what treaties Korea has entered into and the reciprocal relationship between the nations and all foreigners who have not met the criteria shall not be able to register their copyright material.

To apply for registration, you can register by Copyright Commission website (www.copyright.or.kr) or download relevant forms and register by mail after completion of the forms.

[Note] Permission to film in public

It is good to check whether prior permission is required or not when shooting in train stations, subways, airports, parks and amusement parks in Korea. For small shoots, in most cases, no permission is needed, but if a shooting hampers the purpose of the facility then permission may be needed. If information on this matter is needed one can make use of the various network connections that the local film commission retains such as filming permits, public image, author’s rights, buy – to seek for cooperation. For example, to make it easier for the film crew to shoot the film, it is possible to ask for governmental assistance such as from the police, or the film crew could be provided with information on how to get permission and the fees for it to shoot on various sites such as historical sites, and it can even get information on construction sites and which areas to avoid shooting.

(5) Likeness Rights

Likeness rights can be said to refer to personality and financial benefits one receives for their image and likeness. No one can film, publicize, or use for commercial purposes another person’s face or another person’s physical feature that can distinguish him/her based on other societal norms, without consent. However, in no connection with the contents of the movie, even if a random person is coincidentally filmed while the movie was being shot in a public place and due to such person incurs damages, there is no need to pay compensation. But, if it does have connection with the contents of the film, then consent must be obtained and if possible it would be better to have a written consent. Although filming and publicizing of public figures are allowed at all times and do not infringe upon likeness rights, because publicity rights, which is a right to use their reputation for commercial purposes are acknowledged, special caution must be taken for public figures. This is because when calculating compensations, compensation amounts for public figures are higher than that of the average person.

(6) Music Copyrights

In Korea, in order to use another copyright holder’s music for background music, you must first decide whether the music will be newly performed or whether a recorded music sold in the markets will be used. If you are using the recorded music, you must receive two licenses from the music company that launched the album of the music: a license for the copyright of the sound source, and a license for the copyright recorded on the album. For copyrights of the sound source, you should contact the music company listed on the album cover. In order to receive copyrights permission of music, you must locate the songwriter and composer, but in most cases, receiving approval for copyrights is commissioned to organizations called music publishing companies. To seek music copyright holders in Korea, contact the Korea Music Copyright Association (KOMCA) at www.komca.or.kr.

[Note] Copyrights regarding music and conversation inserted in the film by coincidence while filming in public places

It cannot be considered as using copyrights in cases where music or conversations that have nothing to do with the shoot, are unintentionally and unavoidably included in the film due to filming on the streets. Thus, there is no need to receive the copyright holder’s permission

HOW TO MEET KOREAN CO-PRODUCERS

There are several windows of opportunities to reach Korean producers when you need to find local production partners. You may directly contact producers' associations, set up business meetings at film festivals' project markets, or participate in KOFIC's coproduction support programs. Here are a few key suggestions you might want to consider.

KOFIC's KO-PRODUCTION

KO-PRODUCTION is a blended abbreviation of 'Korea' and 'Co-Production', and is KOFIC's support program helping international Korean co-productions and enhancing bilateral collaboration between the countries involved. Initially conceived as a Korea-China Biz Camp in 2006, KO-PRODUCTION has expanded its territory to Japan, France and as of 2016 and integrated all of its events under a new umbrella dubbed KO-PRODUCTION.

Organized by KOFIC, it is an array of industrial events including project pitching sessions, seminars, producers' workshops, business meetings, and post-production showcases.

Project Markets

Asian Project Market (Formerly PPP)

Organized by the Busan International Film Festival and its associated Asian Film Market, Asian Project Market is the biggest project market in Korea where filmmakers, producers, co-producers and financiers come together to seek various business opportunities. Focusing on Asian cinema, Asian Project Market has brought numerous notable film projects to the international stage, many of which are now achieving great success in international film festivals; Turkish director Semih Kaplanoglu's Honey won the Golden Bear Award at the Berlin Film Festival, while Lee Chang-dong's Poetry received Best Screenplay at the Cannes Film Festival, and the Critics' Week Award at Cannes went to Bi, Don't Be Afraid directed by Vietnamese filmmaker Phan Dang Di.

• Advantages of the Asian Project Market Official Projects

- 1. Exclusive one-on-one meetings with co-producers and investors from around the globe
- 2. Eligibility of the Asian Project Market Award competition (a cash prize that is given to the Asian Project Market Award laureate projects)

• Call for Entries to the Asian Project Market

A feature-length fiction film project in any stage of production, not fully financed, is eligible to apply. Submissions are received in May or June every year.
